Nouhad Génadry, MD
Clinical Instructor, Family Medicine
nouhad.genadry@laumcrh.com

Dr. Nouhad Génadry is a family physician with over 40 years of clinical experience. He earned his Doctor of Medicine degree from Université de Montréal, Canada, and completed his specialty training in Family Medicine at the American University of Beirut Medical Center, where he also completed his clinical training.

Throughout his career, Dr. Génadry has been dedicated to providing comprehensive, patient-centered care, emphasizing preventive medicine, continuity of care, and the management of common acute and chronic conditions across all age groups.

In addition to his clinical practice, Dr. Génadry is actively involved in medical education as a Clinical Instructor. He contributes to the training and mentorship of medical students and residents, sharing his extensive practical experience and highlighting the importance of compassionate, ethical, and holistic patient care. With decades of hands-on practice, Dr. Génadry brings valuable real-world insight to both his patients and his teaching role, supporting the development of future physicians and promoting high standards of care within the community.

Dr. Génadry is a member of the Lebanese Order of Physicians, the Collège des Médecins du Québec, and the American Academy of Family Physicians, reflecting his long-standing commitment to professional excellence and ongoing engagement in the field of family medicine.